

The Entrepreneur

Themba Makamo, a Katlehong-born entrepreneur is shaking up the country's footwear industry with his rapidly growing sneaker brand, VAYA.

He established his brand in 2019 to celebrate ambitious people and remind them to keep working on their goals regardless of circumstances.

Founded on the ethos of igniting the hustle fire and ambition in the hearts of South Africa, VAYA is set to disrupt the R50 billion worth South African Footwear Industry positively.

The sneaker footwear was officially debuted in the local market in November 2019. Despite the devastating effects of Covid 19 which kicked in five months into business, they managed to manufacture and distribute over 500 pairs of sneakers.

Worksheet Ten:

Interview an Entrepreneur

Worksheet 10

Identify, contact, and interview the entrepreneur; reflect on the entrepreneur engagement experience; and share lessons, recommendations, and feedback.

Worksheet 10.1

In this section, your task is to interview a entrepreneur in your neighbourhood and explore their understanding of entrepreneurship. Through this interview, you will gain insights into the challenges and opportunities that come with starting and running a business.

Step 1:

Identify an entrepreneur in your neighbourhood whom you would like to interview. You can use various resources such as social media, local business directories, or word of mouth to find them.

Step 2:

Contact the entrepreneur and request an interview. You can do this via email, phone call, or in-person visit. Explain the purpose of the interview, the time required, and the expected outcomes.

Step 3:

Prepare a set of questions for the interview. This will help you to focus the conversation and ensure that you cover all the essential aspects of entrepreneurship. Some potential questions might include:

- What inspired you to start your business?
- What are some of the biggest challenges you faced when starting your business?
- How did you overcome these challenges?
- What has been your most successful business venture so far, and why?
- What advice would you give to someone who wants to start their own business?

Step 4:

Conduct the interview. This can be done in-person, over the phone, or via video conferencing. Make sure to record the conversation with the entrepreneur's permission.

Step 5:

Analyze the data collected during the interview. This can be done by reviewing the recording, taking notes, and summarizing the key findings.

Step 6:

Reflect on the insights gained from the interview. This can be done individually or as a group. Consider the challenges and opportunities faced by entrepreneurs and how they impact the local economy.

Step 7:

Write a report summarizing the interview and your reflections. This can be done in the form of a written essay, a presentation, or a video. Make sure to include key takeaways from the interview and any recommendations for aspiring entrepreneurs.

Operations Model (use. Worksheet 4.2) as a guide as well. A framework has been provided for you (page 33).

Remember:

- Inputs
- Production and Transformation
- Output
- Customer Experience

Staffing:

- How many employees are employed by the entrepreneur?
- What roles do they fill?
- What training is offered or should be offered?
- How is performance managed?

Inventory:

- What inventory is managed, and how is it managed?
- How is the supply chain managed, and how are the supply chain relationships managed?
- What tools or systems will you use to track inventory?

Customer Service:

- What is the customer service philosophy?
- How does the entrepreneur ensure that customers are satisfied?
- How is customer satisfaction measured?
- How does he or his business respond to feedback?

Review the operations plan of the entrepreneur:

- Identify where the current operational plan falls short. What shortfalls did you identify?
- Make recommendations to close the identified gaps. What recommendations did you make?
- How open to feedback was the entrepreneur? How did you determine this?
